Week in Review: Week 3, wow this month is moving fast. I got all my work done on Saturday of week 2. I had a day off and was able to concentrate on my school work and get it all done. I really enjoyed getting my work done because I know that I am working towards my dream job at Microsoft. I wrote Bill Gates a letter this week as well and hoping he will respond to my email. At work we are getting ready for Valentines day, we will be selling on HSN again. I Helped my daughter with here work again this week too.

Reflect and Connect: I sure felt good to get all most of my work done very early and I don't have to sweat and thing okay what do I have to do for today. All I had to worry about was the post replies to my fellow classmates. Over all it was a great week and I think I made some new connections with some of my classmates. This is really great class including the instructors and the classmates. I look forward to the last week but at the same time I will miss everyone from this class, I will have to look forward to the "Project & Portfolio part II.
