Week in Review: I have been spending so much time trying to understand what I am supposed to do for each assignment. The last two assignments I am not sure I have did them correctly but I think I am close. I chose my research on Bill Gates because he has been my idol since I was in middle school, I have wanted to work for Microsoft since then as well and to work my way to become the next Microsoft CEO. Bill Gates is the attention that keeps driving me to get good grades and to not give up. I am really enjoying this class, the students are really nice and enjoy interacting with all the students with there very nice comments. I think once I get past this first week I should be able to figure our what is expected of me. I still have to figure out how to get my directories made. I having problems installing the software, I will have it figured out by Tuesday, I might have to call FSO Help to figure this out.

Reflect and Connect: I have spent a lot of time this week reading over and over to understand the work that is expected of me on assignments. I have never really programed and when I did make websites I use FrontPage and there was not programing back then. I am determined to get this figured out this class. I am not sure how well I did this week, but I know I spend a lot of time reading and reading the material. I still have yet to figure out how to make the GitHub directories setup and to get them to upload.
